To measure the effect of trunk motion during stereotactic body radiotherapy (SBRT) on dose distribution to the upper thoracic spine. We used an anthropomorphic phantom and daily on-board dose log files (DLLs) to measure the dose distribution around the target (tumor bed) and to the non-target (contralateral lung, heart and spinal cord) in SBRT. Data from ten patients treated at a single center were included. There was little change in the dose
