Also, silicon nitride (Si3N4) has excellent resistance to thermal, chemical and mechanical loadings. Silicon nitride (Si3N4) is used as a wear-resistant material for cutting tools, parts of microwave ovens, and parts of automobiles, for example. Also, silicon nitride (Si3N4) is used in glasses for making fibers and films, and as a polishing material. In order to make silicon nitride (Si3N4), silicon is nitrided in a nitrogen atmosphere at a high temperature of about 1000° C. or more. However, when silicon is nitrided in a nitrogen atmosphere at a high temperature, impurities are also nitrided at the same time. Therefore, it is difficult to obtain silicon nitride (Si3N4) with a high purity. Meanwhile, Japanese Patent Application Publication No. 2009-271383 discloses a method of purifying silicon nitride. In the method, after a silicon nitride layer is formed at a temperature of 600° C. or less, the silicon nitride layer is transferred to a vacuum chamber, and then is heated in an atmosphere of ammonia gas at a temperature of 2000° C. or more. Here, the silicon nitride layer is chemically nitrided and nitridation reaction occurs thereon. Therefore, it is possible to obtain a silicon nitride film of high purity. However, the method of purifying silicon nitride described above has a problem that ammonia gas used in nitridation reaction is not completely decomposed. Therefore, it is difficult to use the method for purifying silicon nitride.Q: What will be the time complexity of this recursive method in C++? Consider the following code: int myMethod(int a) { if (a c9d1549cdd

In Poland, among manufacturing companies, there are production of a great number of types of paint and coatings. As a result, emission of volatile organic compounds (VOCs) into the atmosphere in the workplace is an unavoidable phenomenon. This research was aimed to verify the efficiency of biofilters in a system of ventilation of paint rooms. In the experiments, the following paints were examined: liquid acrylics, water-based polyurethane, oil-based polyurethane and oil-based acrylics. In each of the analyzed paints, the toxicity of the volatile products was determined. The results showed that the system of ventilation of paint rooms with the use of biofilters reduced emissions of VOCs in paints much more than the ventilation system without the use of biofilters. In paints, the level of VOCs is low in the presence of the biofilter. The ventilation system was used only in the two paint rooms, in which the level of VOCs determined in

P&G sells the rest of the company. Procter & Gamble(NYSE:PG) is selling its consumer staples business to private equity firm 3G Capital, according to the New York Times. The company has been looking for a way to monetize its stable of brands like Tide and Ariel and will sell them to 3G for $11.8 billion in cash. Although that's a lot of money, it shouldn't dilute P&G's earnings much. Investors should be rooting for P&G and 3G because their partnership will allow 3G to acquire P&G's remaining 58% interest in Colgate-Palmolive(NYSE:CL). Based on the impact this acquisition will have on P&G's operating profits, the deal should boost those earnings by $1 billion to $1.2 billion annually. P&G has been trying to sell its consumer staples division since at least 2014
